

24 Month Activities and Reporting for FY22/FY23

Expanding Relationships, Enriching Economic Opportunities

Florida State University (FSU) continues to implement its Supplier Diversity Plan (SDP) in an inclusionary manner aimed at enhancing the participation of qualified small businesses in state contracting to include small, minority, veteran and women owned business enterprises (SMV/WBEs).

This document reflects the University's market-driven approach toward continued development for a broadened level of business participation. Through outreach and educational activities, the University enhances its commitment of equity in contracting and procurement.

The Chief Procurement Officer will provide direction for the University's SDP with a focus on communications with the small business community through outreach efforts and educating staff internally on ways of making small acts of inclusion.

The Jim Moran Institute for Global Entrepreneurship offers programs to business owners and entrepreneurs of established companies (more than 3 years) with three or more employees to assist with implementing best practice management.
